INTRODUCTION

The primary objective of the current study is to examine the impact of cannabis legalization on Canadians. The study examined five primary research questions, including the extent to which legalization is associated with changes in: 1) prevalence and patterns of cannabis use, including use among ‘minors’ and levels of dependence; 2) risk behaviours, including driving after cannabis use and use in ‘high risk’ occupational settings; and 3) the commercial retail environment, including the price and the type of products used, the use of high potency products, and the extent to which consumers shift from ‘illicit’ to ‘legal’ sources of cannabis; 4) perceptions of risk and social norms; and 5) the effectiveness of specific regulatory policies, including advertising restrictions, product labelling and warnings, public education campaigns, and the use of cannabis in public spaces and workplaces.

The pre-legalization baseline or ‘Wave 1’ survey was conducted from August-October 2018 with 27,169 respondents aged 16–65 years living in one of three jurisdictions: 1) Canada (n=10,057), 2) US states that have legalized non-medical cannabis (n=7,398), and 3) US states in which non-medical cannabis remains illegal (n=9,714). In Canada, approximately 1,000 respondents will be recruited from each province to examine differences in provincial policies and retail markets. This survey will be repeated annually (at 12-, 24- and 36-months follow-up) to monitor changes over time, as well as key mediators and moderators of use, in each of three jurisdictions.

STUDY PROTOCOL

OVERVIEW

Data for the Wave 1 baseline survey (n=27,169) were collected via a web-based survey from August 27 to October 7, 2018. Data for the Wave 2 survey (n=47,747) were collected from September 13 to October 31, 2019. Participants completed a comprehensive survey on the prevalence and patterns of cannabis use, as well as risk behaviours, social norms, etc.

SAMPLE AND RECRUITMENT

Sample Eligibility

Individuals were eligible to participate if they resided in a Canadian province or US state, were 16–65 years old at the time of recruitment, and had access to the internet.

Recruitment and Consent

Respondents from Canadian provinces and US states were recruited using the Nielsen Consumer Insights Global Panel, which maintains panels in Canada and the US (<http://www.nielsen.com/ca/en/about-us.html>). The Nielsen panels are recruited using both probability and nonprobability sampling methods in each country. For the current project, Nielsen drew stratified random samples from the online panels in each country, based on known proportions in each age group. To account for differential response rates, Nielsen modified these sampling proportions to place greater weight on sub-groups with lower response rates.

PARTICIPANT COMPENSATION

Monetary incentives have been shown to increase response rates and to decrease response bias among sub-groups commonly under-represented in surveys, including disadvantaged subgroups. Respondents from Canadian provinces and US states were provided with incentives according to Nielsen’s regular remuneration structure.

ETHICS CLEARANCE

The project has been reviewed by and received ethics clearance through a University of Waterloo Research Ethics Committee (ORE#22392/#31330).

STUDY CONTENT

Respondents completed an online survey in English or French. Survey measures were drawn or adapted from national surveys or selected based on previous research. Development included focus groups and cognitive interviewing with youth and young adults, as well as an extensive pilot test with 1,045 Canadians aged 16-30.

The survey includes models on the following content areas:

- prevalence and patterns of cannabis use
- cannabis purchasing and price
- cannabis consumption and modes of use
- commercial retail environment
- risk behaviours
- cannabis knowledge, perceptions of risk and social norms
- exposure to health warnings and public educational campaigns
- exposure to cannabis marketing and branding
- substance use and other risk behaviours
- socio-demographics, postal code, and socio-economic status
